

ABSTRACT

The electrode carbon material of the present invention is an electrode carbon material to become a constituent material for an electrode of a nonaqueous electrolyte battery, wherein the electrode carbon material is formed by way of a plasma processing step of 5 subjecting a material composition to high-frequency thermal plasma processing in a plasma gas atmosphere including a sulfur-containing compound.